Early infection by EBV is a critical step in the natural history of disease. We evaluated the diagnostic performance of the EBV-specific PCR assay from Roche Molecular Systems for the detection of EBV infections in adults. In this multicenter study performed in six European laboratories, EBV DNA was detected in 221 (12.3%) of 1,742 adults, with an overall sensitivity of 90% and a specificity of 95.9%. The most frequent site of infection was saliva, with a significantly higher prevalence in immunosuppressed patients (21.9%) than in nonimmunosuppressed patients (6.7%). No association was found between the presence of EBV DNA and age, sex, and CMV or HSV DNA in the blood. The PCR assay from Roche Molecular Systems is highly sensitive and specific for the detection of EBV-DNA in saliva and blood samples from adults.
